

ABSTRACT

In an interferometric displacement measuring system, a correction for beamshear is made. The correction may be a polynomial of a variable proportional to the length of the optical path traversed by the measurement beam and the angle of the measurement mirror. The correction compensates for errors caused by non-planarity of the wavefront of the measurement beam.